The cool breeze blowing along the river takes away the colors of summer swiftly and replaces it with robust autumn shades. The orange-red leaves on the entire row of trees along the street even slightly overshadow the famous red telephone boxes. Autumn gives the city a new look, as slight chills and occasional rain have permeated the city's streets and can be felt by its residents. Walking on the streets has become a most pleasant experience, giving people the chance to feel the pulse of urban life and the changing of seasons.

London, with its long history, has always been a global top performer in all fields. Quacquarelli Symonds ( QS ) , an international higher education evaluation agency, has published the Best Student Cities 2022 ranking, and London claims the No. 1 spot yet again for the third consecutive year. The analysis points out that the popularity of job recruitment after graduation for students who studied in London ranks fourth in the world. In addition, its student diversity ranks fifth globally. We can see that London, as a world-class city, shows its inclusiveness and diverse composition in terms of international students. In addition, according to the UK Safety & Wellbeing Index, a research conducted by local consultant company Phoenix Health and Safety, London is ranked as the safest city in the UK alongside Luton and Swindon, so it is not surprising that the city is beloved by students from all over the world who choose to study there.

Resonance Consultancy, an internationally renowned consulting company, released the latest ranking of World's Best Cities in September. The capital of the United Kingdom once again won the title of world's best city; it has been such for six years in a row. In addition to the overall rankings, London is also No. 1 in the world in the cultural and entertainment ( Programming ) category out of the six standards of evaluation. This attests to its charm for tourists.

The metropolis of London is like a multi-faceted diamond: It is truly unique and reflects its brilliance from different angles, just like different aspects of the city exuding all the splendid charm it possesses. Just like a diamond, the fascinating thing that every traveler sees and feels depends on how to appreciate this magnificent ancient city with a rich history.
